PRESIDENT'S CORNER

2014 continues to be an exciting year. The MOSHE Board and Committees are continuously working to provide additional benefits for our members.

I always find that the late summer months are a good time to reflect and refocus on the balance of the year. I had a great opportunity to do just this recently as I participated and the 51st ASHE Annual Conference in Chicago. The Conference provided time away from my daily duties at the hospital for education, networking and a chance to relax and catch up with friends. It is interesting to hear how my peers are dealing with the challenges they face in their healthcare facilities, and it is even more interesting to learn how many similarities exist between our organizations regardless of the size or location. The ASHE Conference theme, "Survival of the Fittest" was certainly appropriate given the current challenges we face in the health care industry.

I also continue to be amazed by the skill and experience level of the people that have dedicated their career to healthcare facility management. A colleague of mine once told me that in our roles we often end up "doing everything in our organizations that that no one else wants to do." This comment has stuck with me over the years, and I could certainly make an argument that it is true, given the fact that I am currently involved in issues including design and construction, maintenance, grounds, real estate, safety, and even the establishment of a Day Care center for the hospital! But after some reflection, I would amend this comment to "in our roles, we end up doing many different functions, because facility managers are good at many things." More than ever there is a need for MOSHE and its mission of providing the necessary education for all of us to succeed in our jobs.

Shawn Bailey, the 2014 Education Committee Chair and his committee are already working on the 2015 education program calendar, selecting healthcare facility venues throughout the State of Missouri. Michele Lord and Jeff Yates, the October 8th Seminar Co-Chairs, have the 2nd Annual One Day Seminar in great shape. This year there will be two keynote speaking sessions. The morning keynote speaker will be Donn Sorensen, Regional President, East Communities Mercy Health. The afternoon keynote session will consist of panelist from healthcare facilities throughout the State of Missouri, with Ken Cates, Co-Founder & Principal, Northstar Management as the moderator. Also, for the first time, MOSHE is using online registration for the One Day Seminar. Registration has begun and seating is limited so sign up soon! There are also a few spots left for our golf tournament on September 15, so please consider joining us for this fun event.

I am also pleased to announce that our Education Committee has secured John Maurer from the Standards Interpretation Group at the Joint Commission as our speaker for the Missouri Hospital Association Conference on November 6. It has been a busy year at TJC, and there have been many changes in the standards, and John will be giving us an update and a preview on the areas of focus for TJC in 2015. I hope that all of you will be attending, and if you are a TJC accredited hospital this should be an easy sell to your administration to justify the time off work and cost to attend. We will be finishing out the year with our annual Meet & Greet and Awards Ceremony at Helen Fitzgerald's in December.

If you are not currently active in MOSHE, please consider volunteering. The education and networking opportunities that I have received via my participation with MOSHE and ASHE have proven priceless in terms of knowledge and the friendships that I have established. When I first entered into health care facility field, I turned to ASHE for the necessary education and skills to advance in my job. The need for ongoing education has become a necessity in our field, and MOSHE plays an essential role in this area.

Thank you for your support of MOSHE, and I look forward to the second half of the year.

Brad Taylor, MBA, CHFM0
2014 MOSHE President
